Powerful Pen

Chase understands that modern litigation is won and lost primarily on the written word, and courts read hundreds of briefs every year. So he writes briefs that stand out from the stack in their credibility, clarity, helpfulness, design, and overall persuasive force.

Winning Strategy

Chase enters every battle expecting to win, because he prioritizes a methodical process of sowing strong legal positions that reliably reap decisive victories. The results speak for themselves.

Faithful Stewardship

As both a lawyer and CPA, Chase never loses sight of a client's bottom line. He is uniquely positioned to maximize the return on resources he is entrusted with while avoiding unnecessary waste.

Chase Cobern is a business litigator who specializes in briefing and arguing critical motions and appeals—the most decisive factor in modern complex commercial litigation. Chase has authored briefs and presented oral arguments in the Texas Supreme Court, U.S. Courts of Appeal for the Federal Circuit and Ninth Circuit, U.S. Patent Trial and Appeal Board, Texas courts of appeal, and various federal trial courts across the country.

Chase approaches every issue with a passion for developing the best legal arguments and presenting them to courts as clearly, credibly, and persuasively as possible. His cases involve a broad range of subject matter, including patent infringement, trade secret misappropriation, First Amendment and anti-SLAPP challenges, breach of contract, employment discrimination, real estate disputes, breach of fiduciary duty, business torts, and securities fraud.

Outside the office, Chase is active in his local congregation and enjoys spending time with his wife and four children.
